

VILLA IS DEFEATED BEFORE AGUA PRIETA

POWER OF CHIEFTAIN THOUGHT BROKEN AS HE SUCCUMBS TO CARRANZA

ASSAULTS FAIL AND INDIANS' AID COMES TOO LATE

Villa Retires to Eastward Amid Cheers from Victors Leaving Many Dead and Wounded on Field

AMERICANS HIT BY FLYING BULLETS

Nine Persons in Douglas Injured by Flying Missiles from Battle; No Resistance Offered

DOUGLAS, ARIZ., Nov. 2.—Defeated, the Villista army retired to the eastward from Agua Prieta today, leaving 400 dead and wounded on the battlefield.

The Villista forces seemed to be disintegrating. Many were thought to be deserting to go in search of food and water. It was considered here that the Villa machine was broken and that the defeat meant a virtual ending of the rebel chieftain's power.

Villa's retirement was greeted by a roar of cheers from the victorious Carranza garrison. Repeated assaults had failed. General Calles' entanglements proved impenetrable. After a last desperate attack this morning the hungry and thirsty Villista troops fled.

Indians Arrive Too Late Just too late a large force of Yaqui Indians, estimated at 2,000 men, joined the Villista army. General Calles sent fresh troops to his trenches to meet the Yaquis if they attempted to renew the assault but their arrival did not stem the Villista retirement.

Wounded Villa soldiers, captured and taken to the Carranzista hospital in Agua Prieta, stated that they had been without food two days. Villa was said to have told them they could easily capture Agua Prieta.

All General Calles' cannon were intact today. Many Agua Prieta buildings, however, were badly damaged.

Nine Americans, including four soldiers of the Seventh infantry, had been wounded in Douglas today, since the battle of Agua Prieta opened between the Carranzista and Villistas across the border here.

Rain of Lead Hits Town A rain of lead has fallen in every street of the American town since 1 a. m. when General Villa ordered a determined assault from south of Agua Prieta in an effort to exterminate the Carranza garrison.

Commanders of the United States troops have made no attempt to execute their threat to fire on either side endangering American lives or property.

The Villistas became so bold in their assault that a score of their snipers even took up vantage points on the American side. They put two of General Calles' searchlights out of business with well placed shots.

Only the lateness of the hour prevented a greater casualty list in Douglas.

Attacking from the south, General Villa could not possibly avoid firing

ENTIRE FAMILY IS WIPED OUT IN TENEMENT FIRE

Thirteen Persons Lose Lives When Flames Sweep Through Brooklyn House

VICTIMS CAUGHT IN HALLWAYS Police and Firemen Delve Into the Ruins to See Whether Others Perished

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Thirteen persons lost their lives in a fire that early today wiped out two crowded tenements in North Sixth street, Brooklyn, and drove more than thirty families homeless into the street. Policemen and firemen were searching the ruins this morning in an effort to determine whether others perished. All the dead were suffocated. One family of six was entirely wiped out. Three women, four children and six men comprise the death toll.

Police reserves fought their way through the crowds that poured from neighboring tenements to get to the buildings. Panic stricken women and children swarmed about the burning tenement hindering the work of firemen and would-be rescuers.

All of the bodies were found in hallways and near windows, where the inmates rushed when the first wave of stifling smoke swept through the corridors.

Firemen had the blaze under control within an hour. Panic grew as body after body was dragged from the smoldering buildings and laid out on the pavements while surgeons worked desperately with pulmotors. Shrieking women and children, fearing relatives had perished, fought to get near the bodies. A hurry call was sent in for reserves, but it was long before even they could restore a semblance of order.

The police at first believed the fire started from an oil lamp, but later declared they believed the tenements were set afire from motives of revenge. "Apparently of incendiary origin" was the entry made on the police blotter.

DO ISLAND PIG STEALERS PLAN BIG STOCK FARM?

French Island Men Convicted of Taking Piggie Now Invade Chicken Coop at Party

Two young men of French Island are planning to start a stock farm. Last week they were convicted in a local court of stealing a pig. Today, Chris Schultz, French Island farmer, and son, George, bring charges against the young men of stealing sixteen chickens. They claim the chicks were stolen for spite work, because the young men were not invited to a surprise party given to the elder Mr. Schultz. They came anyway, and during the course of the evening disappeared, according to Mr. Schultz. When the party broke up the sixteen chickens were among the missing. Several members of the Schultz family came to La Crosse this afternoon and said they would obtain warrants for the young men's arrests.

COUNTY VALUATION INCREASES MILLION SINCE LAST YEAR

"Marked Increase" in Land Values Noted by Assessor in Barre, Holland and Onalaska

CITY VALUATION GOES UP Increase Over 1914 Figures Is $681,062; County Realty Valued at More Than $33,000,000

La Crosse county's true value has increased $1,120,534 since the 1914 tax valuation, according to the report of County Assessor of Incomes James E. Keizer, which was submitted to the committee on assessments of the county board in session at the court house today. The county's true valuation now, according to Mr. Keizer's figures, which includes the city of La Crosse and all electric railway lines, is $44,639,233, against the estimated value last year of $43,518,699.

City's Valuation Grows Mr. Keizer's estimate places the true value of the city of La Crosse at $27,172,221. This increases the city's value over last year $681,062. The 1914 estimate gave the value of La Crosse as $26,597,159.

The income assessor's estimates on the city of La Crosse and the other taxable districts are today being compared by the assessment committee with the figures of the various county tax assessors. The assessment committee is practically an equalization board, and will determine the amount of taxable property, both personal and real, of the county before making its report at the annual meeting of the board of supervisors.

"Assuming that it had been assessed at the same value as in 1914," quoting Mr. Keizer's report, "the total assessed valuation of the real and personal property of the county would show an increase of $1,065,386 over that of 1914 and including the sum of $616,321 in the city of La Crosse, and $449,065 in all other districts.

"Marked Increase" "My estimate," continues Mr. Keizer's report, "of all county property, including electric railways, shows an increase of $1,120,534 over the same estimate for 1914, of which amount $581,062 is in the city of La Crosse and $539,472 in the balance of the districts. There is a marked increase in the real estate valuations of the towns of Barre, Holland and Onalaska."

The aggregate true valuation of all personal property in La Crosse county, as arrived at by the individual assessors, is $7,848,513, which is $1,791,038 below the estimate of Mr. Keizer. His figures for personal property are $9,639,551.

Figures of the state tax assessor place the true valuation of the electric railway lines here at $1,175,000.

The Values True value of all property in the various towns, villages and cities of La Crosse county, as given in the assessor's report follow:

Bangor	$1,137,004
Barre	1,089,924
Burns	1,821,935
Campbell	1,106,564

LOVER KILLS SON CALLED HOME BY DEATH OF MOTHER

Jealous Pleasant Grove Farmhand Shoots Young Man in Kitchen of Farm Home

SLAYER CAPTURED BY SHERIFF Murderer Found Where He Had Taken Refuge in Vacant Farmhouse Hidden In Woods

QUARREL STARTS OVER MAID Dennis Smith Denounces Young Robert Brewster In Jealousy Over Irene King

Smith was captured without a struggle by Sheriff Blehrud and a small posse at noon today. He was hiding in a vacant house on the farm (his uncle, a few miles from the scene of the shooting. He was taken to Spring Valley, where he waived examination before Justice Burson and was bound over to district court which meets November 9. Smith did not deny shooting Brewster.

Shot by the jealous lover of a maid in his father's house, Robert Brewster, 21, today lies in the darkened front room of a farm home near Pleasant Grove, Minn., beside the body of the mother to lighten whose last hours he had hurried home from the west.

Dennis Smith, 21, a farmhand employed by James E. Brewster, father of the murdered man, fired the two shots which killed the young man. One pierced his heart and the other his brain. He died almost immediately after the shooting.

The shooting occurred about 8 o'clock last night in the kitchen of the Brewster farm house. The young Brewster arrived Saturday from the west, called to the bedside of his mother. Shortly after his arrival his mother died, with her husband and son at the bedside. The funeral was to have taken place today.

Irene King, 20, daughter of a neighbor, has been helping with the housework at the Brewster farm since Mrs. Brewster was taken ill some weeks ago. Pretty, attractive with the fresh charm of twenty, she is one of the belles of the quiet farming community. Recently she has been "keeping company" with Dennis Smith, a young farm hand employed on one of the neighboring farms.

Lover Is Jealous Details of the tragedy which grew out of the situation last night are scant. It is known that the Brewsters, father and son, were sitting in the kitchen, talking with Irene, when Dennis Smith came to the house. Of what followed the sheriff's office at Preston has only an indefinite idea. There was an argument, Smith jealously denouncing Mary and the younger Brewster. There was a scuffle, and two shots were fired.

Brewster dropped, mortally wounded. Smith dashed out of the house while Irene and the doubly-bereaved father bent over the young man who lay gasping on the kitchen floor.

La Crosse police were notified by Sheriff Blehrud of Preston to be on the look-out for Smith this morning. They were warned to watch Milwaukee and Northwestern road trains by which it is possible for Smith to get to La Crosse. Pleasant Grove is ten miles from Chatfield, Minn., in the upper corner of Fillmore county.

In Vacant House At noon today, however, a deputy sheriff at Preston said that Blehrud had been called out again early today after spending most of the night scouring the country-side in search of Smith, by news that the murderer was believed to have taken refuge in an empty house hidden in the woods. The sheriff started for the scene in an automobile, intending to raise a posse of neighbors to storm the house if Smith refused to surrender.

ROADHOUSE MARRIAGE ROCK

Because she objected to having her husband operate a roadhouse, Mrs. Petra Botz is today starting suit for divorce against Ferdinand Botz. Mrs. Botz maintains that ever since she registered a kick about his proposal to open a county saloon, her husband has mistreated her, and several times knocked her down. The couple were married here twenty-two years ago.

SCHOOLS TO ASK $10,000 INCREASE IN 1916 BUDGET

Annual Budget Is Adopted at Meeting of the Board of Education Last Night

$4,000 FOR SUMMER SCHOOL Industrial Education Board Proposes Exchange to Give Them Five Rooms in Longfellow Building

Ten thousand dollars more than was allotted them last year is asked for the schools of La Crosse in the budget which was adopted by the board of education at their regular meeting at the high school last night. The budget calls for $126,000. The council last year allowed the schools $116,000.

Routine business was all that came before the attention of the board. The budget as adopted by the board asks for the sum of $12,000 besides $2,500 needed to construct an exterior boiler room at the Jefferson school on the north side, and the sum of $1,500 to replace toilets in the Lincoln and Jefferson schools, bringing the total amount needed up to the $126,000 mark.

$4,000 for Summer School The summer school, which proved successful in its first term here, will be held again next summer if the money for its operation is forthcoming. The summer session this year cost $3,600, and with the addition of several rooms next year to care for the estimated increase in attendance, it was figured that the sum of $4,000 will be required. This amount was included in the figure of $122,000.

The proposition which confronts the board in the lunch room at the high school was touched upon, with the time necessary to empty the school buildings in fire drills. The Franklin school was emptied in 55 seconds and the Logan, its branch, in 40 seconds.

Propose School Exchange L. C. Hirschelmer and A. Schroeder, besides Mr. Benezet, members of the Industrial Educational board, attended the meeting and presented a proposition to the public school board to take over five rooms at the Longfellow school for industrial school use. Several of these rooms are now used by the public school students, and it was proposed that they be transferred to the Washburn school. In exchange for the rooms at the Longfellow school, the industrial board proposed to equip a room at the Washburn school with the domestic science equipment now in the Longfellow school and used by the pupils of the Washburn school. They would also install heating facilities to heat that room and the one above it. The industrial school now has the use of two rooms, but will be cramped for space in the near future, it was pointed out. They need the two household arts rooms, a class room used by the university extension division, a recitation room used by the Washburn school and a shop room. The board of education authorized President Luening to settle the question with the industrial board.

South and southeast of Milanovac (a few miles north of Kragujevac, the Serbian arsenal site taken by the invaders Monday) the Serbs still held dominating heights which the Austro-Germans wrested from them after hot fighting.

In the angle between the Morava and Resava rivers about thirty-two miles south of the Morava's mouth the Germans captured the height overlooking Trinovo.

The Austro-German colors were first hoisted over the Kragujevac arsenal and barracks. A little later the German flag also floated above them.

Twenty Serbian officers, 6,600 men, thirty-two cannon, great numbers of smaller arms and large quantities of ammunition and supplies fell into Teutonic hands as a result of Monday's victories.

Fresh Troops at Kavala LONDON, Nov. 2.—Anglo-French transports with fresh troops for the Balkan campaign have arrived off Kavala, a Greek Aegean seaport, eighty miles east of Salonika, and twenty miles from the Bulgarian frontier, according to the Berlin Tageblatt today.

Fears that Monastir, Serbia, has been captured by Bulgarians are expressed in an Athens message to the Evening News today.

The Serbian main force's communications to the southward have been cut off it was stated.

RETURNS INDICATE SUCCESS FOR THE CHINESE MONARCHY

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—Election returns today continued to indicate an overwhelming majority November 20 for re-establishment of a monarchy in China. It was believed the northern Chinese will accept the result as a fair one, but serious disorders threaten in the south. The government is taking formidable military precautions.

The trio was brought back to La Crosse by Dr. Sulter, who dressed a slight wound over Anderson's eye. They left for Stoddard this morning.

ENGLAND CALLED TO ACCOUNT FOR SEIZURE OF STEAMER HOCKING

Jewel Box Gone Where Volunteer Firemen Worked

One of the volunteer firemen who carried out the furniture and turned garden hose upon the flames which attacked the N. B. Hanson home on Mormon Coulee road when the residence was threatened by the flames which destroyed the Limoseth blacksmith shop a week ago is believed to have stolen a jewel box containing five rings from the dresser of Mrs. Hanson.

Two pearl rings, a plain gold ring, a ruby and a signet ring were in the box which has disappeared. It has not been seen since the night of the fire.

Police have been asked to search for the missing jewelry.

COLORS HOISTED OVER ARSENAL Kragujevac, Taken Yesterday, Today Flies Colors of the Austro-Hungarians

BERLIN, via Tuckerton Wireless, Nov. 2.—Greek troops have fired on a French force which was retreating from the Bulgarians out of Serbia into Greek territory, according to the Berliner Tageblatt today.

VIENNA, via Berlin and London, Nov. 2.—In a series of bloody fights in the region 35 to 40 miles above the Morava river mouth, the Austro-Germans were clearing the country today of scattering bands of Serbs which escaped earlier annihilation in the Teutonic sweep southward through Serbia.

These parties are not strong enough to constitute a military menace to the invaders but are troublesome as guerilla fighters. The Austro-German front is to the south of them and today's operations are in the nature of completing the conquest of the territory already occupied.

STATE DEPARTMENT ACTS QUICKLY ON CASE AT HALIFAX

Action Considered Challenge of English Policy Questioning Validity of Transfer

MAY CONTEST BASIC POLICY Consul Young at Halifax Says No Official Reason Was Given for the Seizure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—England was today asked by the United States to explain the seizure of the American steamer Hocking at Halifax. Secretary of State Lansing sent a note to American Ambassador Page at London directing him to secure a British explanation.

This prompt action was taken to challenge the new English policy of questioning validity of transfers of ships to the American flag.

That a vigorous protest will be made contesting the ship seizure policy was officially stated. Consul Young at Halifax received at the state department today caused this government to demand the explanation from England. Young stated that British authorities had officially given no reason for the seizure of the Hocking, but that apparently the bona fide character of the ship's transfer to American registry was questioned.

The state department announced that as yet it has begun no inquiry regarding prior ownership of the Hocking. A complaint received from the vessel's New York owners did not state the previous nationality, which was Danish.

Although aggravating the case, the fact that the Hocking was seized by the British warship patrol off New York while enroute to Norfolk and not in foreign commerce, state department officials declared, would not alter the diplomatic status of the protest to be made to England.

As the Llama was sunk by the prize crew placed aboard her by a British warship, the negotiations will include a demand for indemnity, the British navigators being in charge and responsible for her loss off the coast of Scotland.

SALOONIST FINDS SLEEPY STRANGER CORPSE IN CHAIR

La Crescent Bricklayer Is Dead when Fitzwater Attempts to Awaken Him Last Night

When S. H. Fitzwater, saloon-keeper at 221 South Front street, went to wake up a stranger who had fallen asleep in a chair in his establishment preparatory to closing last night, he discovered that the man was dead. The man was today identified by the police as William Hatchell, 55, a bricklayer who has recently been employed by J. C. Raymond at La Crescent.

Fitzwater discovered the man's sudden death about 8:45 last night. When he told the police about the affair, he recalled that the man had fallen from his chair about 5 o'clock, and upon being helped to regain his seat had immediately fallen asleep again. He came into the place about 4 o'clock, and fell asleep after taking a few drinks, Fitzwater said.

Heart disease is believed to have caused his death, as Dr. R. E. Flynn could find no injury which had been received by his fall from the chair in the afternoon.

The body is in the custody of Coroner William L. Tetley, who is attempting to locate relatives. The identification of the man as Hatchell was shaken this afternoon when J. C. Raymond denied that anyone by that name had been employed by him.

HER LADYSHIP DECIDES

BY IZOLA FORRESTER

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

She read the invitation over with a little amused smile utterly baffling to Courtney. He turned away and walked to the end of the veranda, staring out at the line of incoming waves just visible above the golden hummocks of sand.

"It's from Peggy."

"You won't go, of course." Somehow he managed to say it naturally. "Oh, but I'd love to go, Courtney—just four days down the coast and back."

"I don't want you with that crowd, Wanda. You don't belong with them."

Wanda laughed softly, pinning up her hair, tumbled masses of hair, fresh from bathing. He stood looking down at her, wishing with all his heart that he had not come at all. He was sick and tired of forever playing the part of admonisher and dictator to her ladyship. It had been difficult enough when he had received the first letter from her brother, Halbert, was bound for the trenches and glory.

It would be dull for Wanda back in London. She had worked hard through the winter and needed a change. Wouldn't Courtney and his mother keep an eye on her if she ran over for a few weeks. It had sounded so easy in the asking. But Courtney had met Wanda twice during visits abroad. He knew that of all willful, capricious, irresistible wards, her ladyship would prove the hardest to manage. Still he had agreed to watch over her. Ostensibly she came as the guest of Mrs. Towne, his mother, but it was Courtney who shouldered the full responsibility.

"I haven't seen Peggy since she was married. She says they are going to put in at Pinehurst pier tomorrow at 10 and I am to motor over with you. She would love to have Mrs. Towne and you come, too, Courtney."

"My mother doesn't approve of Peggy."

"No!" with lifted brows. "She's perfectly dear, and now she's married she's settled down wonderfully. I think I shall go, Courtney."

Courtney said nothing. He agreed quite pleasantly to drive over the next morning. Mrs. Towne was indisposed, and some way Wanda managed to coax her into acquiescence.

It was a cool, windy morning the next day, when they started for Pinehurst. Courtney had chosen his own car, a low, two-seated French machine. He seemed rather silent as they swung out along the shore road.

"It isn't far, is it?" Wanda asked lightly.

"About eighteen miles. I'm going to take the short cut."

Once outside the little seaside village, he turned off the main road and took the one through the pines inland. Wanda stole a glance at him again, at the clean cut, although stern profile beside her, and then at his hands and the way they gripped the wheel.

"You don't really mind my going do you, Courtney?" she asked tentatively.

"Not at all now," Courtney returned cordially.

"Halbert's very fond of Peggy. I think he might have married her himself some time if she hadn't chosen Capt. Minturn."

Courtney smiled at the ribbon of road unwinding before him. His eyes were half closed. He knew every inch of this road. And every mile was taking them from Pinehurst and the boat landing. Yet he waited to make sure. It was at the fourteenth mile that he slipped a lever wrong and the machine stopped.

With a quick apology he sprang out and started to tinker away at the car. Her ladyship chattered for a few minutes, waiting impatiently, but as the minutes flew by, she glanced around curiously at the unfolding hills.

"I don't see the ocean."

"It's down at your left."

"Very far?"

"Somewhat."

She hesitated and frowned.

"Courtney, are you really trying to fix the car or just—"

He sat up in the road, his cap on the back of his head, and smiled at her.

"Just what?"

"You're not fixing it at all, are you? That's what you call it over here, isn't it, fixing instead of repairing? Won't it go at all?"

He shook his head contentedly. She stepped from the car with dignity, delightful dignity he thought, considering.

"I think I shall walk until I find some sort of a conveyance."

"You can't, because we're about seven miles at least from the last house. I'm going to stay here until—" he glanced at his watch thoughtfully—"until 10:30. They will have sailed by then, don't you think so?"

Wanda's dark eyes were bright with anger.

"Dear, you are not quite 19," said Courtney gently. "Halbert put you in my care and I can't conscientiously let you chase down the coast with Peggy and have her marry you off to any other crowd."

"You mean Kent?" The color rose in her face quickly.

Courtney nodded.

"I know the whole thing, Wanda. I heard Kent bet that he would marry you before you returned to England. You know as well as I do that old Halbert is in debt to make him so. It was part of his game to make him so. It gave him a surety of his consent to his winning you and I could not stand that sort of thing. I think perhaps Halbert had it in mind when he placed you in my charge. Now do you understand?"

Wanda stood before him, while now, her hands clenched at her sides. It had all been a lark, her wanting to go with Peg. She had not really cared, but when he had made an issue of it, had amused her with the point over him. Even though she knew Kent Paxton was going, she had not realized what it might mean.

"You see, dear," he went on slowly, "it isn't just for Halbert's sake, either. It's for your own. You know that, don't you, Wanda? I haven't been able to get word out to your father yet, but there's been a little run of luck for him, some money out of a Mexican deal that has seemed dead. We are both in on it, and I sold out our interest last week. There's enough to pay up Kent. You needn't catch the boat."

She caught the underlying bitterness beneath his words and stretched out her hand to him.

"Oh, Courtney, I do need you—"

"Of course, if you really want to go yet," he added unsteadily. "The machine isn't really out of commission. I can get you there. But I want you to come back with me."

Her hands were laid against his lips firmly. Courtney met her gaze

Everyone Should
Drink Hot Water
in the Morning

Wash away all the stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gas, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and—above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast, act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

He sat up in the road, his cap on the back of his head, and smiled at her.

"Just what?"

"You're not fixing it at all, are you? That's what you call it over here, isn't it, fixing instead of repairing? Won't it go at all?"

He shook his head contentedly. She stepped from the car with dignity, delightful dignity he thought, considering.

"I think I shall walk until I find some sort of a conveyance."

"You can't, because we're about seven miles at least from the last house. I'm going to stay here until—" he glanced at his watch thoughtfully—"until 10:30. They will have sailed by then, don't you think so?"

Wanda's dark eyes were bright with anger.

"Dear, you are not quite 19," said Courtney gently. "Halbert put you in my care and I can't conscientiously let you chase down the coast with Peggy and have her marry you off to any other crowd."

"You mean Kent?" The color rose in her face quickly.

Courtney nodded.

"I know the whole thing, Wanda. I heard Kent bet that he would marry you before you returned to England. You know as well as I do that old Halbert is in debt to make him so. It was part of his game to make him so. It gave him a surety of his consent to his winning you and I could not stand that sort of thing. I think perhaps Halbert had it in mind when he placed you in my charge. Now do you understand?"

Wanda stood before him, while now, her hands clenched at her sides. It had all been a lark, her wanting to go with Peg. She had not really cared, but when he had made an issue of it, had amused her with the point over him. Even though she knew Kent Paxton was going, she had not realized what it might mean.

"You see, dear," he went on slowly, "it isn't just for Halbert's sake, either. It's for your own. You know that, don't you, Wanda? I haven't been able to get word out to your father yet, but there's been a little run of luck for him, some money out of a Mexican deal that has seemed dead. We are both in on it, and I sold out our interest last week. There's enough to pay up Kent. You needn't catch the boat."

She caught the underlying bitterness beneath his words and stretched out her hand to him.

"Oh, Courtney, I do need you—"

"Of course, if you really want to go yet," he added unsteadily. "The machine isn't really out of commission. I can get you there. But I want you to come back with me."

Her hands were laid against his lips firmly. Courtney met her gaze

HALLOWE'EN RESULTS IN ARRESTS

Three Jailed in Wildest
Night of Destruction
Caledonia Has Seen
in Years

CALEDONIA, Minn., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—D. J. Sullivan, La Crosse, gave the first of a series of social dances at the city hall Friday night. It is Mr. Sullivan's intention to form a permanent club in the near future, and to continue the dances throughout the winter.

Town Boosts Athletics

A declamatory and musical program was offered by the High School Athletic association in the high school auditorium Friday evening, which netted the boys something less than twenty dollars. Since Caledonia has decided to feature athletics instead of forensics in the year's interscholastic work, the entire school has been bending all efforts to inspire the same enthusiasm for sports as the Caledonia people in general have previously displayed toward debating and oratory, and the number who patronized the entertainment Friday is claimed by the students as an indication that athletics will be properly supported for the rest of the year. The greatest interest has centered upon a basketball team of old men who have been developing for several years, and who, it is boasted, are certain of advancing the orange and black very near to the championship of the state, if not actually accomplishing that feat. This will be the fourth year for the same quintet that averages 171 pounds to the man, which makes their boast seem well founded.

Pranks Jail Three

Hallowe'en netted the city lockup three prisoners, who, in the process of their trial, implicated four of their accomplices who will also be favored with apprehension by the law as soon as they can be discovered. The three captured culprits contributed $3.40 each to the public treasury to pay for their night's revelry, which has brought down the applause of the owners of the many missing fences, wagons and out buildings, but has aroused a howl of disgust among those patient citizens who believe in the adage "boys will be boys." The raids this year were undoubtedly the most effectual and damaging that have been experienced in many years.

ARIZONA LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The "alien labor law," adopted by Arizona under an initiative petition, providing that an employer of more than five persons must employ eighty per cent qualified electors or native-born citizens, was declared unconstitutional in the supreme court today. Mike Raich, an Austrian waiter, asked an injunction to prevent William Traux, his employer and the state from causing his discharge. The lower court declared the law in violation of the fourteenth amendment, not giving "equal protection of its laws" to all residents.

ITCHING NEARLY DROVE A WHOLE FAMILY CRAZY

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 24, 1914.—"My husband had a rash all over his body, and soon the WHOLE FAMILY was in the same condition. It looked scaly and raised up on the arms and body in big bumps. This trouble burned and itched so that it would nearly drive one crazy. It was always worse at night, so we could not sleep. We all had this trouble for about two or three years, and during that time tried many remedies and prescriptions with no results. We tried Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap and it RELIEVED AT ONCE, and before the third jar of ointment had been used, we were all completely cured. It has been four months since we were cured, and there are no traces of the trouble."

TAKE "PREPAREDNESS"
OUT OF THE MARKET

America can not escape the issue of "preparedness." It is made for us in Europe, and regardless of whether the European experience affirms or negatives the desirability of preparation, the issue is forced upon our consideration.

Upon one phase of the problem
there can not be any doubt. It is that phase which is urged upon our attention by Captain F. H. Fowler, probably the most thoroughly informed upon the subject among La Crosse citizens. That phase is our "unpreparedness." There is no discounting the fact that should we be attacked by a first class power, whose navy is superior to ours, we should suffer great immediate disadvantage
before we should be able to offer effective resistance.

The danger of admitting this, the danger of the whole situation, is that in honestly attempting to take such steps as are necessary in the matter we shall be swept off our feet by the jingoism that would saddle this country with militarism of the European type.

The TRIBUNE is in the position
of a majority of American citizens. It wishes to support the right steps, but it is not qualified to say what those steps are. The whole subject is in confusion. The greatest of our military and naval generals do not agree. For the government to arrive at something like a concise conclusion requires much study and that which we fear is that we shall be hastened into wasteful and ill-advised expenditures.

There are two possibilities of war. One is that we may be involved—possibly through the Monroe Doctrine, possibly through trouble

growing out of the present strife—
immediately after Europe establishe
peace. War thus immediately would mean facing a nation with every muscle and sinew hardened to war, a nation of veterans. The other possibility is far removed, for once
enviored in a new peace Europe
will be slow to war for many years.

Should the European war drag on
for two or three years we might whip ourselves into shape to meet the former contingency, but if we attempt to meet so immediate an emergency we shall be less likely to work out a well-considered and satisfactory program. "Preparedness"
that is the result of deliberate preparation is likely to be more serviceable.

Plainly to say how the United States can best and most reasonably prepare itself to meet possible
emergencies, in detail, is far more difficult than to say in general
terms what such preparation should accomplish. In our opinion the maximum requirement for the latter may be stated as follows:

The plan should be worked out
strictly on lines of national defense,
with no regard for invasion of foreign soil.

The United States should be prepared: (1) to prevent immediate landing of expeditionary forces on its shores; (2) in the event of war to rapidly organize and equip land
forces on a basis for successful defense.

We can not conceive of this democracy as a nation of trained soldiers, bristling with fixed fortifications. Its comparative isolation seems to render this unnecessary. To our mind preparation to hold an enemy in check, with facilities for the most rapid organization and equipment of the citizens for military service, would be sufficient.

If this is to be done how? There are thousands of opinions. Ours,
worth not more than that of the average citizen who reads, is that mines and submarines sufficient for coast defenses should be provided,
that coast and field artillery of the modern type, sufficient to deal with a formidable attack, should be ready, and that machine guns to equip a large land force should be provided.

We do not believe, however, that a standing army sufficient to man
and employ the equipment should be maintained, nor do we believe we should saddle ourselves with equipment enough for a great emergency, throughout its duration. To us, to be prepared to prepare seems the limit of essential vigilance. This government should train 50,000 officers; in case of need these officers would quickly train an army. There should be provided plants in which field artillery, shipping, machine guns and ammunition could be rapidly produced. With these facilities, and with the means of holding in check an expedition against us, we should be able to cope with any nation the attack of which involved
transportation of troops from a base
over the ocean.

This leads us to the conclusion
which, we believe, is fundamental.
The present administration is proposing a vast investment in the means of "preparedness." Most leaders of the opposing party lean toward still greater expenditures.
While our impulse is to reject the whole program as excessive and un-American, we are unprepared to discuss further than to say that we think it should not go beyond the standard
which we have set in this writing.
If other views prevail, however, and the United States is about to set up a war machine of which the naval
phase alone shall cost, at the outset,
five hundred millions of dollars, it should equip itself with the plants for manufacturing the materials. We believe this nation should own its own shipyards, ordnance and ammunition factories.

How swiftly would this dissolve
the industrial jingo clique that is

When Good Times Came
When Old Good Times came to say,
"Guess I'll stop and spend the day."
All the sons of Sorrow there
Wouldn't offer him a chair,
But just let him stand and wait
On the outside of the gate!

Then I said: "The lodging's free
If you'll come and camp with me—
Grub's not fine, but will delight
Any honest appetite.
And the loves and laughter wait
On the inside of the gate!"

Then Old Good Times shouted back:
"You have every thing I lack—
Victuals that will bring delight
To my ancient appetite.
And the laughter's superfluous
For this hungry heart of mine."

So he came inside the gate
Where love's happy children wait,
Just content to joyous be
With the little folks and me,
And until the last long day
Says he guesses he will stay!

CUT THIS OUT

Old English Recipe for Catarrhal
Deafness and Head Noises

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness,
head noises or ordinary catarrh cut
out this formula and hand it to them
and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires a constitutional treatment.
Sprays, inhalers and nose douches
are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently
means total deafness, or else the disease is driven down the air passages towards the lungs which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers
here who live under more favorable
climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmit (Double strength). Take this home and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmit is used in this way as it acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a slight tonic action
that facilitates the recovery of the patient. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial.

said calmly "Casey."

O'Flanagan gulped hard, looked at the man suspiciously, and asked:
"How do you spell it?"

"What's your first name?"

"Dennis."

O'Flanagan's face did a transfor-

"Now, what the hell are we going

KAZAN

By James Oliver Curwood

One day they came upon an old otter. He was a giant of his kind, turning a whitish gray with the approach of summer. Kazan, grown fat and lazy, watched him idly. Blind Gray Wolf sniffed at the fish smell of him in the air. To them he was no more than a floating stick, a creature
out of their element, along with the fish, and they continued on their way not knowing that this uncanny creature with the coal-like flappers
was soon to become their ally in one of the strange and deadly feuds of the wilderness, which are as sanguinary to animal life as the deadliest
feuds of men are to human life.

The day following their meeting
with the otter Gray Wolf and Kazan
continued three miles farther westward, still following the stream.
Here they encountered the interruption to their progress which turned them over the northward ridge. The obstacle was a huge beaver dam. The dam was two hundred yards in width
and flooded a mile of swamp and timber above it. Neither Gray Wolf nor Kazan was deeply interested in beavers. They also moved out of their element, along with the fish and the otter and swift-winged birds.

So they turned into the north, not knowing that nature had already schemed that they four—the dog,
wolf, otter and beaver—should soon
be engaged in one of those merciless struggles of the wild which keep animal life down to the survival of the fittest, and whose tragic histories are kept secret under the stars and the moon and the winds that tell no tales.

For many years no man had come into this valley between the two ridges to molest the beaver. If a Sawyer trapper had followed down
the nameless creek and had caught
the patriarch and chief of the colony,
he would at once have judged him to be very old and his Indian tongue would have given him a name. He would have called him Broken Tooth, because one of the four long teeth with which he felled trees and built dams was broken off. Six years before Broken Tooth had led a few leavers of his own age down the stream, and they had built their first small dam and their first lodge. The following April Broken Tooth's mate had four little baby beavers, and
each of the other mothers in the colony increased the population by two or three or four. At the end of the fourth year this first generation of children, had they followed the usual
law of nature, would have mated and left the colony to build a dam and lodges of their own. They mated, but did not emigrate.

The next year the second generation of children, now four years old,
mated but did not leave, so that in this early summer of the sixth year
the colony was very much like a great city that had been long besieged by an enemy. It numbered fifteen lodges and over a hundred beavers, which had been born during March and April. The dam had been lengthened until it was fully two hundred yards in length. Water had been made to flood large areas of birch and poplar and tangle swamps of tender willow and elder. Even with this food was growing scarce
and the lodges were overcrowded.
This was because beavers are almost human in their love for home. Broken Tooth's lodge was fully nine feet
long by seven wide inside, and there were now living in it children and grandchildren to the number of twenty-seven. For this reason Broken Tooth was preparing to break the precedent of his tribe. When Kazan
and Gray Wolf sniffed carelessly at
the strong scents of the beaver city, Broken Tooth was marshaling his family, and two of his sons and their families, for the exodus.

As yet Broken Tooth was the recognized leader in the colony. No other beaver had grown to his size and strength. His thick body was fully three feet long. He weighed at least sixty pounds. His tail was fourteen inches in length and five in width, and on a still night he could strike the water a blow that could be heard a quarter of a mile away. His webbed hindfeet were twice as large as his mate's and he was easily the swiftest swimmer in the colony.

Following the afternoon when Gray Wolf and Kazan struck into the north came the still clear night
when Broken Tooth climbed to the top of the dam, shook himself, and

looked down to see that his army was behind him. The starlit water of the big pond rippled and flashed with the movement of many bodies. A few of the older beavers clambered up after Broken Tooth and the old patriarch plunged down into the narrow stream on the other side of the dam. Now the shining silken bodies of the emigrants followed him in the starlight. In ones and twos and threes they climbed over the dam
and with them went a dozen children born three months before. Easily and swiftly they began the journey downstream, the youngsters swimming furiously to keep up with their parents. In all they numbered forty.
Broken Tooth swam well in the lead,
with his older workers and battlers
behind him. In the rear followed mothers and children.

All of that night the journey continued. The otter, their deadliest enemy—deadlier even than man—
hid himself in a thick clump of willows as they passed. Nature, which sometimes sees beyond the vision of man, had made him the enemy of these creatures that were passing himself in a thick clump of willow, he was born to be a con-
server as well as a destroyer of the creatures on which he fed. Perhaps nature told him that too many bearer dams stopped the run of spawning fish and that where there were many beavers there were always few fish. Maybe he reasoned as to why fish-hunting was poor and he went hungry. So, unable to cope singly with whole tribes of his enemies, he worked to destroy their dams. How this, in turn, destroyed the beavers will be seen in the feud in which

nature had already schemed that he should play a part with Kazan and Gray Wolf.

A dozen times during this night
Broken Tooth halted to investigate
the food supplies along the banks.
But in the two or three places where he found plenty of the bark on which they lived it would have been difficult to have constructed a dam. His wonderful engineering instincts rose even above food instincts. And when each time he moved onward, no bearer questioned his judgment by remaining behind. In the early dawn they crossed the burn and came to the edge of the swamp domain of Kazan and Gray Wolf. By right of discovery and possession that swamp
belonged to the dog and the wolf.
In every part of it they had left their mark of ownership. But Broken Tooth was a creature of the water and the scent of his tribe was not keen. He led on, traveling more slowly when they entered the timber. Just below the windfall home of Kazan and Gray Wolf he halted, and clambering ashore balanced himself upright on his webbed hindfeet and broad four-pound tail. Here he had found ideal conditions.

Railroad Presidents, Silk Worth Million and Fish Make Up the Cargoes

Railroad presidents, silk and fish were the contents of three special trains which passed La Crosse on the Burlington road in the last two days.

President Hale Holden of the road, together with three of the high officials of the Burlington, and J. P. Hannaford, president of the Northern Pacific line, went through La Crosse yesterday afternoon on a tour of the central west portion of the system. They did not stop here. Besides the heads of the two lines, H. E. Bryan, vice president of the C. & N. W., E. P. Bracken, general manager, A. W. Newton, vice president of staff, and Judge Spencer were in the party. Five private cars made up their train.

The road also conveyed more than a million dollars' worth of silk out of La Crosse at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The consignment is billed to eastern distributing centers and comes from Yokohama via Seattle. Six cars made up the special.

A fish special of six cars was due in the north side yards of the road at 4 o'clock this afternoon, bound for St. Paul from New York.

BLAZE THREATENS ST. JAMES SCHOOL

Children March Out in Order When Defective Wiring Starts Small Fire in Attic

Fire, presumably caused by defective wiring, this morning damaged the roof of the St. James parochial school on Windsor street, just across the street from the St. James church.

The fire was discovered about nine o'clock by Sister Gerald, one of the instructresses at the school, who smelled the smoke. Through a small aperture in the ceiling, where the plaster was gone, she saw flames. The flames were confined to the attic, and burned several small holes in the roof.

The 270 children of the school were marched out of the building in order. The older of them returned and carried the text books and pictures out that they might not be damaged by water.

Fire company No. 2, which responded to the fire, was called to the crossing tender's shanty of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad at Caledonia street last night to extinguish a small fire which had started in the roof.

NORMAL SOCIETIES MEET LAST NIGHT

Debating Juries Decide for and Against the National Recall of Judges

Last night was meeting night for the normal organizations. The Websterian Debating society, the Eclectic and Physical Education club met, each to render its own separate program and conduct a business session.

Juries Decide Both Ways

Both debating societies discussed the recall of judges. That it would not be advisable was the decision of the Websterian jury for the negative team consisting of Whitbeck, Rabbit and Standford. That it would be a good thing was verified by the Eclectic jury, which voted two to one for the affirmative team of Nelson and S. Moore. Connor, Johnson, and Dressendorfer argued with the losing side at the Websterian session while Renner and E. Johnson were with the negative in the other society.

The debut of the Eclectic quartet pleased the members of that organization. The four singers, E. Johnson, D. Moore, Ahlstrom and Reid, gave two selections, with E. Johnson at the piano. The boys promised a distinct society song for the next meeting.

Websterians Elect

The Websterians completed an important piece of business in their secret session with the delayed election of officers for the year. The following received the vote of the society:

President—Verne Milum.

Vice president—Arthur Jameson.

Secretary—Ita Standford.

Treasurer—Elmer Kaufman.

Sergeant-at-arms—Roy Baechler.

The Physical Education club of the school assembled last night in the kindergarten room. The people enrolled in this course have banded together for the purpose of holding weekly meetings, hearing things of general interest, deriving mutual benefit from one another, and providing a social organization. Last night the following program was given: Piano solo, Julia Peterson; paper, "Some Phases of Physical Education," Eleve Gates; pantomime, "First Aid," several members; talk, Mr. Gustav Heinemann; song, "La Crosse Normal." The club wound up with its class yell.

It's a good plan to love your neighbors, especially if you are given to borrowing things.

HOT TEA BREAKS A COLD—TRY THIS

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

A New Method

of Baking Cakes

Mrs. Nevada Briggs, the baking expert, says:

"There is just one way to make your cakes rise high and evenly—give them time to rise before a crust is formed and the batter is stiffened by cooking."

"If using a gas, gasoline or oil stove, light your oven when you put the cake in and keep the flame low until the cake has doubled in bulk; then increase the heat until it is evenly browned and will respond to the pressure of the finger. If using a coal or wood range, leave the oven door open until the cake is in; then turn on the drafts and by the time the oven is at baking temperature, the cake will have raised sufficiently."

For rich, moist, feathery cakes Mrs. Briggs always recommends

KC BAKING POWDER

It is double acting and sustains the raise. You can open and close the oven door, turn the tin around in the oven or do anything else necessary, without any danger of making the cake fall.

Try your favorite cake next time with KC Baking Powder and see how much higher it will rise. Make it just as you always do, with the same quantity of baking powder. While KC is less expensive than the old fashioned baking powders, it has even greater leavening strength and it is guaranteed pure and healthful.

ASQUITH HINTS DARDANELLES MAY BE ABANDONED

He Also Dwells on Serious Burdens of Finance and Says Conscription May Be Resorted to

BY ED L. KEEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
LONDON, Nov. 2.—Intimating that the Dardanelles campaign may be abandoned and declaring England's financial situation to be "serious," Premier Asquith this afternoon answered the demand of the British nation for a frank statement regarding the conduct of the war. Members of commons had scarcely settled back from the shock of the first announcement regarding the situation in the near eastern war theater when the prime minister plunged into a discussion of war finances. For the first time since the war began, the head of the British government hinted that the financial burdens imposed by the war may outweigh military considerations. "Our financial situation is serious," said the prime minister. "Though rich and resourceful, we cannot sustain the present burdens unless both the government and individuals exercise the strictest economy."

Asquith's third important statement bore on conscription and he hinted that the government would adopt conscription if present recruiting measures fail.

OWEN DECIDES KUBASTA SHOULD HAVE HIS SALARY

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—Deputy Insurance Commissioner F. W. Kubasta is to receive his salary. This much was settled today by an opinion by Attorney General Owen to Commissioner M. J. Cleary. Kubasta's salary has been held back since he took office two months ago because he was a member of the legislature which voted to raise the salary of the office from $2,500 to $4,500.

The opinion of the attorney general says that the salary was not, in reality, raised, but the salaries of the deputy commissioner and the fire marshal simply lumped, for according to the new law the deputy commissioner is the fire marshal. Neither office was created during the term of which Mr. Kubasta was a member, nor were the salaries raised, all salary determinations being made subsequent to the election of the deputy commissioner by Commissioner Cleary.

Of the amount, it is believed the widow, Mrs. Carrie Pretorius, will receive $50,000 and the German-American Press association of which Pretorius was president, an equal amount. No estimate has as yet been made public of Pretorius' wealth, but his holdings are believed to have been large.

The funeral will be held tomorrow.

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Nov. 2.—Carrie Nation has a successor.

Then Mrs. Thomas entered the joint, smashed everything in sight except a couple of bottles which she took to the police station for evidence.

Faces Court For Beating Children With Whip-Stock

The broken butt of a heavy horse whip, two feet long, with which Christ Bruchman, 1009 South Fifth street, coal wagon driver, is alleged to have beaten his two small children, was displayed in county court by Poor Commissioner Col Burdick this morning, when Bruchman was arraigned before Judge Brindley on charges of mistreating his children.

Bruchman's children are Willie, aged 9, and Ruth, aged 7. The beating which caused Mrs. Bruchman, the man's wife, to appeal to the law for protection for her children, occurred, it is charged when little Ruth did not wash the supper dishes as quickly as her father desired.

It is claimed that both children bear deep marks on their bodies from the blows of the whip. Bruchman's nine year old son has been beaten unmercifully by his father many times, it is charged by the boy's mother. Mrs. Bruchman told Burdick that her children were scantly clad when they were whipped, and that the whipping practice was sometimes a daily occurrence. Although Mrs. Bruchman appealed to Burdick to have her husband arrested, she did not appear in county court to testify against him this morning. The case was adjourned.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE BIGGEST ISSUE AT POLLS IN EAST

Workers Out Early in New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania to Watch the Voters

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—Suffrage was beaten more than two to one in the first Massachusetts town from which complete returns were received this afternoon. Norwell cast 174 votes against and 77 for the suffrage amendment.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The first great suffrage fight in the east overshadowed other issues in the "off year" elections in eight states today. Mild weather overhung New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts when the polls opened and early reports indicated heavy balloting. Thirty thousand suffragists, it is estimated, rose at daybreak and took up positions at the polls as watchers.

Ohio voters were casting their ballots for or against prohibition. Massachusetts, Mississippi, Kentucky and Maryland were electing state officers and state legislators. New Jersey and New York were voting on legislators, and New York was deciding the fate of the proposed new constitution. Congressional vacancies were to be filled in four districts.

In all three states where "Votes for Women" was the big issue, the suffragists took their stand at the polls today with the betting odds sharply against them.

GIVE YOUR HOME GUARANTEED WALLS AND CEILINGS

You will have repair expense and annoyance, sure as fate, if you put walls and ceilings of lath and plaster into your home.

Plaster is a misfit—and always has been—so far as its use in frame buildings is concerned. Wood swells or shrinks according to the moisture in the air. Plaster cannot adapt itself to these changes. It is bound to crack and eventually fall.

But here is the ideal wall and ceiling material for frame buildings which overcomes the disadvantages of lath and plaster—

Cornell-Wood-Board

Guaranteed not to warp, buckle, crack, chip or fall

It is thus guaranteed, because of the exclusive Cornell fibre-sizing process by which the board is sealed through and through and made practically immune to the effects of atmospheric moisture.

Economical-durable-artistic

2 1/2¢ Per Square Foot

Cornell-Wood-Board is applied in half the time of lath and plaster. Saw and hammer are the only tools required. When done you have wonderfully artistic rooms that are a grateful relief from the monotony of plain walls.

Cornell-Wood-Board decorates beautifully with kalsomine or paint—finishes that are replacing wall paper in the best of homes. Come in and see a sample of this remarkable material, and let us figure with you on your requirements.

"Whys" of Moves in European War

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Another serious blow has been suffered by the democracy of Russia through the decision of the czar to revive the post of chancellor of the empire and appoint Premier Goremykin to that absolutist position.

The chancellorship is an unusual office in Russia. It has been filled only twelve times in two hundred years and has been in abeyance throughout the past generation. Its revival is unquestionably due to the czar's desire to increase the power and prestige of M. Goremykin and thus emphasize the approval of reactionary government. Since the czar dissolved the duma, there have been frequent riots throughout Russia. The people have felt that the czar has been attempting to fix his absolutism more firmly on the country and national strikes have been but narrowly averted.

The czar, however, has been able to prevent a revolutionary outbreak and the courage of the autocracy has seemingly increased.

The radicals of the duma threatened to follow the example of the leaders of the French revolution and summon an unofficial duma when the legislature was prorogued, but their spirit has failed them. Resolutions of protest and fiery orations have been the limit of their activities.

The lack of more serious obstruction to street rioting to the czar's anti-democratic activities, has coincided with the halt of the Teutonic offensives in Russia. The czar has unquestionably taken much credit for the new military situation in the empire. The Austro-German check has not been due to positive virtues among the Russians, but to the requirements of the Serbian campaign and to the fact that all the reasonable Teutonic objectives had been won along the eastern front when the czar made himself commander-in-chief of his armies.

Nevertheless, the czar has gained local prestige because the invaders have made no further important advance since his assumption of command. Taking advantage of the moment, therefore, his majesty apparently has resolved to prepare precautionary measures against any later outburst of democracy among his subjects. M. Goremykin, the most reactionary premier Russia has had in many years, is to have his powers largely increased and is to marshal all the stand-pat forces to protect the czar from the duma. For the rest of the war, the duma's influence is to be killed.

BETTER BABIES

The crusade for better babies has spread from coast to coast, and taken firm hold of American Mothers. Few women realize how much the ill health of the mother influences the unborn child, both physically and mentally. Women who suffer from mysterious pains, backache, nervousness, mental depression, headaches, etc., should rely on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, which for nearly forty years has been the standard remedy for these ailments.

Splendid Laxative for Elderly People

Has Been Prescribed by Well Known Physician For Many Years.

The infirmities of age are especially manifest in a tendency to constipation, and call for treatment that will afford relief in an easy, natural manner. The rapid action of cathartic remedies and purgatives that shock the system should be avoided, more especially as the relief they offer is only temporary and is usually more than offset by disturbance to the vital organs caused by their violent action.

Nearly thirty years ago Dr. W. B. Caldwell, Monticello, Ill., prescribed a compound of simple laxative herbs that has since become the standard household remedy in thousands of homes. It acts easily and gently, yet with positive effect, without gripping or other pain or discomfort. Mrs. Rachel Allen, Galesburg, Kans., is seventy-one years old, and after using a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, wrote that it had done her a world of good and that she intends to keep it in the house always. Druggists sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup

BANDITS BUSY IN BLOIT

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach or bowels.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

BY

WILLIS F. GROSS, C. S. B.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church,
The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston,
Mass.

It is evident to every well informed person that Christian Science is a subject of more than passing interest. For nearly a half century it has received most respectful consideration, especially on the part of those who felt the need of a more practical religion and a more effectual method of healing. Many of these persons have found in Christian Science that which healed them morally and physically. As a result of this healing they have become better citizens, neighbors, and friends. Their influence for good has increased many fold, not only in religious activities but in the social life and the business world as well. They enjoy greater freedom for they are not bound by the limitations of mortal belief as formerly. They have a truer sense of what it means to live and render effectual service in the field of honest endeavor. All this is the result of having gained a more practical idea of the Christian religion and a clearer realization of what it is man's privilege to know and enjoy today. Prevalent theories have relegated too much of good to the past or postponed the conscious possession thereof to the far distant future.

Spiritual Teachings

Few persons will deny that Christianity has been the greatest power for good in the history of human experience. Throughout Christendom at least Jesus of Nazareth is accepted as the world's greatest religious teacher. Those who preceded him prophesied the fuller revelation of Truth while those who came after could only reiterate the fundamentals of his doctrine and acknowledge their indebtedness to the great demonstrator of God's power to deliver suffering humanity from the bondage of evil.

Jesus' teachings were understood only in part and the purpose of his mission was comprehended by few. He affirmed and reaffirmed that he taught only the things he had learned of the Father. Concerning the purpose of his life work he said: "To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth." That he was a faithful witness even his enemies were compelled to acknowledge. When he spoke the word "The people were astonished at his doctrine, for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes." He lived as he taught others to live, and he demonstrated the truth and practical worth of his teachings by healing the sick, reforming the sinner and doing many other mighty works.

The multitudes apparently had eyes and saw not; ears had they and heard not. His teachings were understood only by those who had risen above the materialistic beliefs sufficiently to discern their spiritual meaning. His works were misinterpreted because the people failed to understand how they were accomplished and to what end.

Evidences of Christianity

If there are those who ask why the signs do not follow today as of old, they are told there is no longer any need of miracles as an evidence of the truth of Christianity. It is asserted that the good effects of religious teaching on the lives and morals of men are sufficient evidence that the Christian religion is true. This is well enough so far as it goes, but the mistake is made in concluding that the physical healing accomplished by members of the early church was miraculous and was permitted at that time only for the purpose of establishing the truth of Christianity. Is forgiveness of sin miraculous? Is it not so regarded. Why should the healing of sickness be considered miraculous any more than the destruction of sin? Is it not considered that the overcoming of sin is an effect of Christianity and follows as a natural consequence? Is it not taught that the more of the Christ spirit one possesses the less he is in bondage to the evil of sin?

The healing of sickness is one of the beneficial effects of Christianity and it is no more contrary to the natural operation of God's law than is the healing of sin. Christianity should make a man healthy as well as holy, and it would do so if material theories did not limit the power of Truth. Human wisdom acknowledges God's power to forgive sin but contends that the sick man must resort to material remedies and regain his health through obedience to material laws. This false belief prevents the exercise of that faith which the apostle James declared was able to save the sick.

Mortals have made a fatal mistake in consenting to the limitations of faith instead of laboring to remove them. If one's understanding of Truth is unequal to the healing of sickness, would it not be well to search out the cause and earnestly contend for the faith that was once delivered unto the saints? A person gains nothing by declaring there are abundant evidences of the truth of Christianity and that first proofs are no longer necessary, whereas he would gain much by striving for the faith of early Christians which was able to heal the sick as well as convert the sinner.

Demonstrations of Truth

Among the diseases which are mentioned specifically by the sacred writers as having been healed by the Master are fever, drowsy, palsy, leprosy and insanity. Many other physical infirmities were healed. The lame, the maimed, the halt, the deaf, the dumb and the blind were made every whit whole.

To the man with the withered hand the Master said, "Stretch forth thine hand," and "it was restored whole, like as the other." There was a man who had been afflicted thirty and eight years. He lay in a helpless condition beside the pool Bethesda "awaiting for the moving of the water." When Jesus saw him he commanded him to rise and walk, and immediately he was healed. There was a woman who had an issue of blood twelve years. She had tried every known remedy. The record states she "had spent all her living on physicians, neither could be healed of any." She was healed when she touched the hem of his garment. There was another "woman which had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wise lift up herself." Jesus spoke of her as one whom "Satan had bound," which shows that he did not believe her affliction was a dispensation of Providence. "He called her to him, and said unto her: Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmity," and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God.

In at least three instances the dead were raised to life. The daughter of Jairus had just died when the sorrowing father appealed to the Master for help. In the case of the widow's son the funeral party was on the way to the burial, and Lazarus had been dead four days. But no mortal belief, no material condition, not even the conviction that death is inevitable and in accordance with the divine plan, could prevent the demonstration of God's power to destroy even the last enemy.

Universal Remedy

The Master's demonstrations of Truth were so varied and complete that it seems strange humanity has not seen in these healing works the proof that spiritual understanding is the universal remedy for all the ills of human experience. The failure to realize this can be accounted for only as one considers that these works are regarded as miracles; i. e., it is believed they were in some way accomplished contrary to the natural operation of the laws to which men and women of today are subject. This erroneous conclusion has prevented the demonstration of a power which is able to deliver from every form of evil.

Impossibilities do not occur. What has been done in the past can be accomplished today. If a particular result has followed the combination or succession of causes, that result will always follow when the same and no other influences are at work. Because mortals have believed that the healing works of the Master were unnatural experiences, they have not tried to understand how those works were accomplished, notwithstanding the fact that the great demonstrator of God's power to heal all human ills, declared that the believer in all ages would be able to do the works that he did.

Miracles Divinely Natural

Believers in the Christian religion have accepted the miracles of the Bible as demonstrations of divine power. Christian Science presented a new view of those miracles when it declared that the wonderful works accomplished by holy men of God were not contraventions of law. They were not brought about through suspension of the laws of nature, nor by arousing dormant forces and powers which have since returned to their former state. Those healing works were marvelous because human experience was unfamiliar with them. Nevertheless they were the divinely natural result of the operation of law which is ever present and ever active. Because a law is not recognized is no evidence of its nonexistence, and because the operation of law is not comprehended is no proof that the law is inoperative.

All progress is the result of obedience to law. The wonderful inventions of the last century were as possible 6,000 years ago as they are now. There is no law in operation, or in existence today that has not been in operation since time began. And there never has been a law which is not in operation at this moment. If this be true, and if the works of the Master and his followers were the result of obedience to law, then all those works are possible today, and even greater demonstrations can be expected, for no intelligent person believes that the possibilities of infinite law have been realized.

Advantages of Christian Healing

Many helpless invalids have wished it were possible to heal the sick today in the same manner as the sick were healed by the primitive Christians, and most persons are persuaded that if such good works could be accomplished, the hope of overcoming the ills of the flesh would rest upon a more sure foundation. Christian Science declares that it is possible to heal all manner of disease through spiritual means, as was demonstrated by the members of the early church, since those healing works were accomplished through obedience to divine law and that law is in full force today manifesting the will of God.

This Christianly scientific method of healing has many advantages. It is the one universal remedy for all discordant conditions; it is the most effective healing method the world has ever known, and it avoids the possibility of disastrous results of operations and material methods of healing. It is always available. There is never a time or a place that the remedy is not at hand, for God's law and love are ever-present and omnipotent. Is it not believed that God is ever-present to help all men in the overcoming of sin? Why then should it seem unreasonable to declare that God is ever-present to help in the overcoming of other discordant conditions?

When Paul was permitted to plead his own cause in the presence of King Agrippa and the principal men of the city, he asked this searching question: "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" And so Christian Science is asking of thinking men and women of today, believers in God, believers in the verity of the sacred writings, believers in the power and efficacy of prayer, why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should heal the sick?

Is there anything unreasonable in such a teaching? Is it in any sense contrary to the letter or the spirit of the Scriptures? Even though one may not believe in Christian Science, as he understands it, must he not admit that the claims of Christian Science are legitimate and in accord with what could be reasonably expected if one were to accept and put into practice the teachings of Jesus? Is there any reason why one should not accept at its full value the emphatic declaration: "He that believeth shall be saved"? Surely not. Why, then, should he not accept, with the same measure of faith, that other remarkable declaration made by the same person on the same occasion, "And these signs shall follow them that believe"? Why should he not accept that other equally important utterance of the great Teacher, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do, shall he do also"?

Kingdom of Heaven at Hand
John the Baptist was the forerunner of Jesus. He came preaching in the wilderness of Judea, and the burden of his cry was, "Repent ye; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." When Jesus lifted up his voice to proclaim the gospel of salvation to a waiting world, he taught the people that something was required on their part. "Repent; for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," was the keynote of his message. When he sent out his disciples to preach the gospel and heal the sick, he told them to declare unto all who had ears to hear, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand."

To repent means more than to be sorry for wrongdoing. The literal meaning of the word translated repent is "to have another mind." Paul said, "To be carnally minded is death, but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." Is it not true that if one would escape from sin and disease, which result in death, he must "have another mind"? So long as mortals are in bondage to the material sense of things, heaven, harmony, will seem to be afar off. Only as they become spiritually minded can they see things as they really are and understand that "the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Even though there may be differences of opinion as to where heaven is located and when and how it is to be gained, all are agreed that in heaven there is no sin, sickness, nor death. The revelator saw the heaven and a new earth and he heard a great voice out of heaven say, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain; for the former things are passed away." In view of the fact that John saw this new heaven and new earth nearly 2,000 years ago, must it not be that this harmonious state of existence is the reality of being now?

What is Required
The declaration that "the kingdom of heaven is at hand" implies that it is possible of attainment. Jesus said to his disciples, "Except your righteousness shall exceed the Pharisees, ye shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven." Here was the emphatic declaration that a sense of righteousness or right thinking and living, higher than was entertained even by those who were regarded as the spiritual leaders of the people, was necessary to gain eternal harmony.

While it may seem that the chief purpose of the Master's works was to help those in need of help and to convince the world that his teachings were true, yet the great benefit of these works to universal humanity, is to be found in that they were practical applications of the Truth which he declared would never pass away but would remain for all men to understand and demonstrate.

Heaven will never be more real than it is at this moment, and it is at hand. Nothing but the mortal belief in the reality and power of evil can prevent a man from entering this kingdom now. God's will is supreme and absolute in heaven. It is manifest in the harmonious operation of law. To understand and obey divine law is to enter the kingdom. More than this is not required and less will not avail.

Christian Science Discovered

The term Christian Science was used by Mary Baker Eddy to designate the purely spiritual method of healing both sin and sickness which she discovered. Mrs. Eddy was a faithful student of therapeutics and theology. Previous to her discovery she was a believer, to a certain extent, in the then prevailing method of healing, although for many years she had endeavored to trace physical effects to mental causes. When but a child she became a member of an orthodox church and faithfully adhered to its teachings so far as she was able to accept them. There were some things, as for example the doctrine of predestination, which was so generally taught in those days, which she could not accept because they were not in accord with her thought of God as Love.

It was Mrs. Eddy's great need of physical healing which led to the discovery of Christian Science. The remedies known to medical science had failed and her physician said there was no hope, but her faith in God did not waver. She turned to the one infinite good for help and her prayer was answered. She did not regard her restoration to health as a special dispensation of Providence. She believed and afterwards proved that it was the divinely natural result of the operation of law which could be understood and demonstrated.

There was no person to whom she could appeal for an explanation of this wonderful healing. There was no book save the Bible which could throw any light upon her experience. She tells us that this book answered her questions as to how she was healed. As she read the inspired word in the light of her marvelous experience, it spoke to her in a new tongue. In the spiritual understanding of the Scriptures, she discovered the Science of Christianity and learned how its sacred truths can be humanly applied to the healing of sickness and sin.

This new found faith was a living faith and through her loving ministrations scores were healed of diseases pronounced incurable. Being convinced by many infallible proofs that she had discovered the Principle and rule of scientific Mind healing, she then demonstrated that it was possible to impart to students an understanding of this Science which would enable them to heal the sick. Thus was begun the greatest religious movement and the most effectual reform in the healing of sickness known to recent centuries.

Christian Healing Scientific

While this system of healing is not in accord with the various material methods known as medical practice, and while it does not harmonize with some of the present day theology, nevertheless it is Christian in spirit and practice, and it is scientific. It is based on divine Principle and can be demonstrated only as this Principle is understood and obeyed.

The teachings of Christian Science and the method of application in the healing of sickness and sin are today exactly what they have been from the beginning. What other method of healing administers the same remedies and proceeds along the same lines as it did forty years ago? The rapidly changing theories as to the cause and cure of disease would seem to justify the assertion, there is no one.

We hear it asked, Is there no progress in Christian Science. Indeed there is, but progress in Christian Science means a better understanding of God as divine Principle. This understanding is expressed in a more spiritual consciousness and more faithful obedience to divine law.

There can be no contradiction of Truth. Every idea of Truth must necessarily be in perfect accord with every other idea. What one learns of reality is for eternity. If he has really gained even one idea of Truth he will never find another idea to contradict it.

The Text-Book

Mrs. Eddy is the author of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," the first and only text-book on Christian Science. This book is in no sense a substitute for the Bible, and has never been so regarded. Bible students have derived great benefit from commentaries and various other helps, but they have never considered any of these things a substitute for the Scriptures. Neither has the student of Christian Science considered Science and Health a substitute for the Bible. This book helps him to gain the spiritual sense of the Scriptures and to make a more practical application of the inspired teachings in the problems of daily life.

The various other writings of Mrs. Eddy, the unique public service which she instituted, the truly effectual church organization and government which she established, the provision for supplying the world with an abundance of pure Christian Science literature, all go to show how clearly she realized humanity's great need.

A Wise Leader

Mrs. Eddy was one of the most capable and successful religious leaders of this or any age. As students of Christian Science we realize that if we would gain the greatest possible good from her teachings we must lay the right concept of her life and her works in the true sense of the word a leader is one who goes before, and the most capable leader is the one who is the most successful doer.

When Mrs. Eddy gave to the world the fundamental teachings of Christian Science she was not promulgating a theory. She had long since passed the theoretical stage in her work. It was the demonstrable idea of Truth which heals morally and physically that she set forth in her writings. During the more than forty years she labored to establish Christianity on a scientific basis she always went before, and when she lifted up her voice it was to speak of the things she had found true in her own experience.

It is often the case that a leader seeks to impress his followers with a sense of the greatness of his personality, but Mrs. Eddy was never influenced by such a motive. She never lost sight of the Master's wise counsel in the Sermon on the Mount, "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." From first to last it was her earnest endeavor to turn the thought of the people away from her personality to God. To those faithful students who so lovingly accepted her as their God-appointed Leader, she said many years ago, "Follow your Leader only so far as she follows Christ" (Message to The Mother Church, June, 1901).

Enlightened Faith

We sometimes hear it said that the physical healing accomplished in Christian Science is merely the result of faith. Let it be admitted that faith is desirable, yes, even necessary; this in no way detracts from the practical value of Christian healing, rather does it show that this method of healing, even from a human point of view, is established upon a foundation more enduring than that which supports the gigantic material enterprises of a commercial age.

Take away faith in men, in business methods, in the value of securities, and especially faith in the certainty of success—what would you have to build upon? Very little, if anything. It must be admitted that the value of material things is largely mental. When faith in values is destroyed there is a period of depression which continues until faith is restored. The so-called hard-headed business man is as much dependent upon faith as on anything else.

Human faith in good is not a thing to be esteemed lightly. It needs to be encouraged and strengthened, for without faith the attainment of good is impossible. Faith is by no means a weakness; on the contrary it is an indication of strength and power. In the Scriptures we read that "faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Faith in the possibility of an achievement is necessary to success in any undertaking. In all ages those who have contributed most largely to the world's good have been men and women of great faith.

In this truly wonderful dissertation on faith, contained in the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, Paul writes, "He that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." The opening sentence of the Christian Science text-book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," is as follows: "The prayer that reforms the sinner and heals the sick is an absolute faith that all things are possible to God—a spiritual understanding of Him, an unselfed love."

On one occasion a father came to Jesus bringing his lunatic child whom the disciples had failed to heal. In the anguish of his heart he exclaimed, "If thou canst do anything, have compassion on us, and help us." The Master replied, "If thou canst believe, all things are possible to him that believeth." It is recorded that the child was cured from that very hour.

When the disciples asked why they had failed to cast out the evil spirit he told them it was because of their unbelief. He did not say the case was incurable, neither did he say it was God's will for the child to be afflicted in that manner, but he did say that failure was due to their lack of faith, or spiritual understanding.

Fitness to Receive

Good is infinite but it comes into human experience only as men are prepared to receive it. Belief in good and the possibility of its attainment is a step in the right direction; faith is a more spiritual quality of thought wherein one begins to rely upon the Infinite and to expect the desired result, but spiritual understanding, which is faith in the true and broad sense of the word, demonstrates God's presence and power.

It is a fundamental teaching of Christian Science that God, divine Love, has bestowed countless blessings upon all mankind. No good thing is withheld; but there must be an ability to perceive and a fitness to partake of that which has been bestowed. On several occasions the Master said to those who appealed to him for help, "According to your faith be it unto you," and to certain of those who were the recipients of God's goodness he said, "thy faith hath saved thee." By this he meant that they were prepared to receive the blessing of Truth. It is recorded that on one occasion he did not perform many mighty works because of the people's unbelief. They were not prepared to receive what it was in his power to give.

In his parable of the sower the Master taught that results are satisfactory only when conditions are favorable. The soil must be good, and it must be prepared for the seed. If the soil is of inferior quality or is not properly prepared it is unreasonable to expect a bountiful harvest. If one would receive the blessing of Truth he must make fit preparation. If he is unwilling to do this he should not complain when he fails to experience the good he desires.

Obedience to Law

At the very beginning of his public ministry Jesus declared that he was not come to destroy the law but to fulfill the law. By example as well as precept he taught obedience to divine Principle. Neither in word or in deed did he transgress

the immutable law of God.

When one learns that eternal good can be gained in no way except through obedience to divine law he has begun to build on a sure foundation. The thought of God as person has encouraged the belief that one can gain good merely by asking for it, but the understanding that God is divine Principle operating through spiritual law shows what is required on man's part and why it is required.

All sin, sickness, discord and suffering is the result of a false sense of God and man. That which produces discord is not the remedy for discord, and can never succeed in removing it. When this self-evident fact is recognized it will be understood that the only remedy for evil is that which cannot produce or contribute to evil.

Paul had a clear sense of truth and error, good and evil, and throughout his writings he is very careful to separate one from the other. What could be more to the point than his positive declaration that "to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace?"

The carnal mind includes all evil, but spiritual consciousness has no sense of evil and is life eternal. To human belief the tares and wheat, good and evil, truth and error, grow side by side. Spiritual understanding separates the chaff from the wheat. All that emanates from Divine Mind is good, while that which originates in mortal mind has no legitimate place in consciousness.

Diagnosis

It is apparent to all that sin is a quality of the carnal, or mortal mind, and that it can be overcome by gaining the true sense of good. It is not, however, so generally understood that sickness is from the same source as sin and that it can be effectually healed in the same manner. The influence of thought upon the body, and mental conditions are being taken into consideration even in the physical diagnosis of disease. It is admitted that many times what are regarded as purely physical conditions could not result from the same natural causes if mental conditions were different. Even from a material point of view a harmonious mental condition is most desirable.

In all the affairs of human experience it is believed that to understand the nature of a trouble and what has caused it, is a great help in overcoming the difficulty. This is believed to be especially true of disease, and many persons argue that before one can heal a disease he must know its name and nature and what has caused it. A correct physical diagnosis of disease is well-nigh an impossibility, as is shown by the great diversity of opinions among those learned persons who have spent years of study along material lines. Many times what is considered a cause is merely an effect, and the first or primitive cause is unknown. It must be admitted that many sick persons have recovered, or at least appeared to do so, when the physician was unable to determine the nature of the trouble or what had produced it.

One celebrated physician and surgeon declared it to be his honest conviction that nine persons out of ten would recover without the aid of material remedies if they would simply let nature take its course. It is admitted even by the advocates of material methods of healing, that all that drugs can do is to help nature heal the sick, and to this end and for this purpose only are they administered by those who employ them.

Laws of Nature

Let it be granted that sickness is the penalty paid for breaking nature's laws either knowingly or unwittingly. Then the question arises, How can the sufferer best attain for the wrong that is done and regain his health? If it be true that nature is asserting itself in behalf of the sick man, how can the unfortunate one place himself in the position to experience the greatest possible good? There are various forms of medical practice, all claiming to work in harmony with nature's laws, and those in need of healing must decide between them.

Christian Science teaches it is divinely natural to be healthy and unnatural to be sick. The discords termed sickness and sin, and all other inharmonious conditions and experiences, can be dealt with as intelligently as can the discords of music or mathematics, and they will be overcome as readily when the divine Principle of harmonious being is understood and the laws thereof intelligently obeyed.

According to Christian Science, laws of nature are not laws of matter but laws of divine Mind, and the world's most successful healer declared that his followers in all ages would be able to heal the sick in accordance with these unchanging laws.

When the sick are brought into harmony with God's law they are restored to health. How is this accomplished? The prayer of faith is the unfailing remedy. When it is understood that the sick are healed by reason of the activity of divine Mind operating through spiritual law, who will say that the prayer of spiritual understanding is less scientific than the mental operation which diagnoses disease according to material theories, or that it is less effectual in healing the sick than is the drug or application administered in accordance with the material diagnosis? It can no longer be denied that the sick are healed in Christian Science even though the majority are not prepared to admit that the method is scientific. One may question the method but he cannot deny the result.

Conservation of Health

We hear a great deal these days about the conservation of health and the means by which this most desirable end can be attained. Few persons realize how much Christian Science is doing in this direction. Christian Science is a preventive as well as a curative. Thousands have been restored to perfect health after they have been pronounced incurable, and there is no means of estimating how many have been healed before they reached the so-called incurable stage.

If obedience to divine law heals the sick, then the best way to preserve health and prevent the development of disease is to know and obey the law of God. According to Christian Science, laws of matter, and what are termed laws of health, are simply man made beliefs and not laws of God. Health and freedom are gained through obedience to God's law, and not as the result of being in bondage to the so-called law of mortal mind.

The most effectual means of conserving that which is good and at the same time delivering humanity from discordant conditions, is to impart the understanding of divine law, which always works out good and is never the source or cause of evil. "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit," declared the great exponent of divine law. If one desires good he must look to the source whence good can come. He must do this understandingly. According to his enlightened faith he will receive the blessing he desires.

Physical and Moral Healing

It is believed by many that disease and suffering are to a certain extent in accordance with the divine plan. Jesus regarded human experience from an entirely different point of view, and his success in overcoming discordant conditions proved that his faith was right.

Mortals have made a fatal mistake in concluding that there is one remedy for sin and another remedy for sickness. Jesus was as successful in healing sickness as he was in destroying sin. Why then should he not be considered an authority in the one case as well as the other? In his teaching and practice, physical and moral healing were one. Nowhere did he intimate by word or deed that different remedies were required. When the people murmured because he said unto the sick man, "Thy sins be forgiven thee," he asked "Whether it is easier to say, 'Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, 'Arise, and walk?'" To the impotent man whom he healed he said, "Behold, thou art made whole; sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee."

Jesus declared that he could do nothing of himself. Whatever was accomplished was the work of God. Is it not evident that he considered the healing of sickness as divinely natural as the healing of sin? He did not teach that there are two laws, one to be obeyed by the sick man and another by the sinner. There is but one law, the law of divine Mind, and obedience to this law is required of both the sick and the sinful. Whatever the human need, obedience to the law of God will supply that need, for God is infinite good and "no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."—are obedient to divine law.

Jesus commanded his students to heal the sick and cast out devils as well as preach the gospel, and this command was faithfully adhered to until mortal belief substituted material methods for God's power in the healing of sickness.

Christianity is Practical

Christianity as Jesus taught it is effectual; being effectual, it is practical, and because it is practical it is the privilege of every man to find in his own experience the proof of its truth and power. Christianity is not rightly apprehended until it becomes practical, for it is not a matter of faith merely. The Scriptures declare that "faith without works is dead."

There is great need of a religion which heals, and a healing system which is thoroughly Christian in theory and practice. Christian Science meets these requirements. It heals both sickness and sin. It relies upon and recognizes no power apart from God. Its teachings are found available in all the activities of human endeavor. It renders effectual aid in every time of need, and is proving itself to be the one universal remedy for human ills.

After the resurrection the Master appeared to his disciples and commanded them to make disciples of all nations, "teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." He gave them this assurance of divine guidance and protection: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." This sweet promise is being fulfilled. Men are learning from experience that spiritual understanding never faileth. It is the one thing needful, and there is no limit to what it can do for men. It is sent to "heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised."

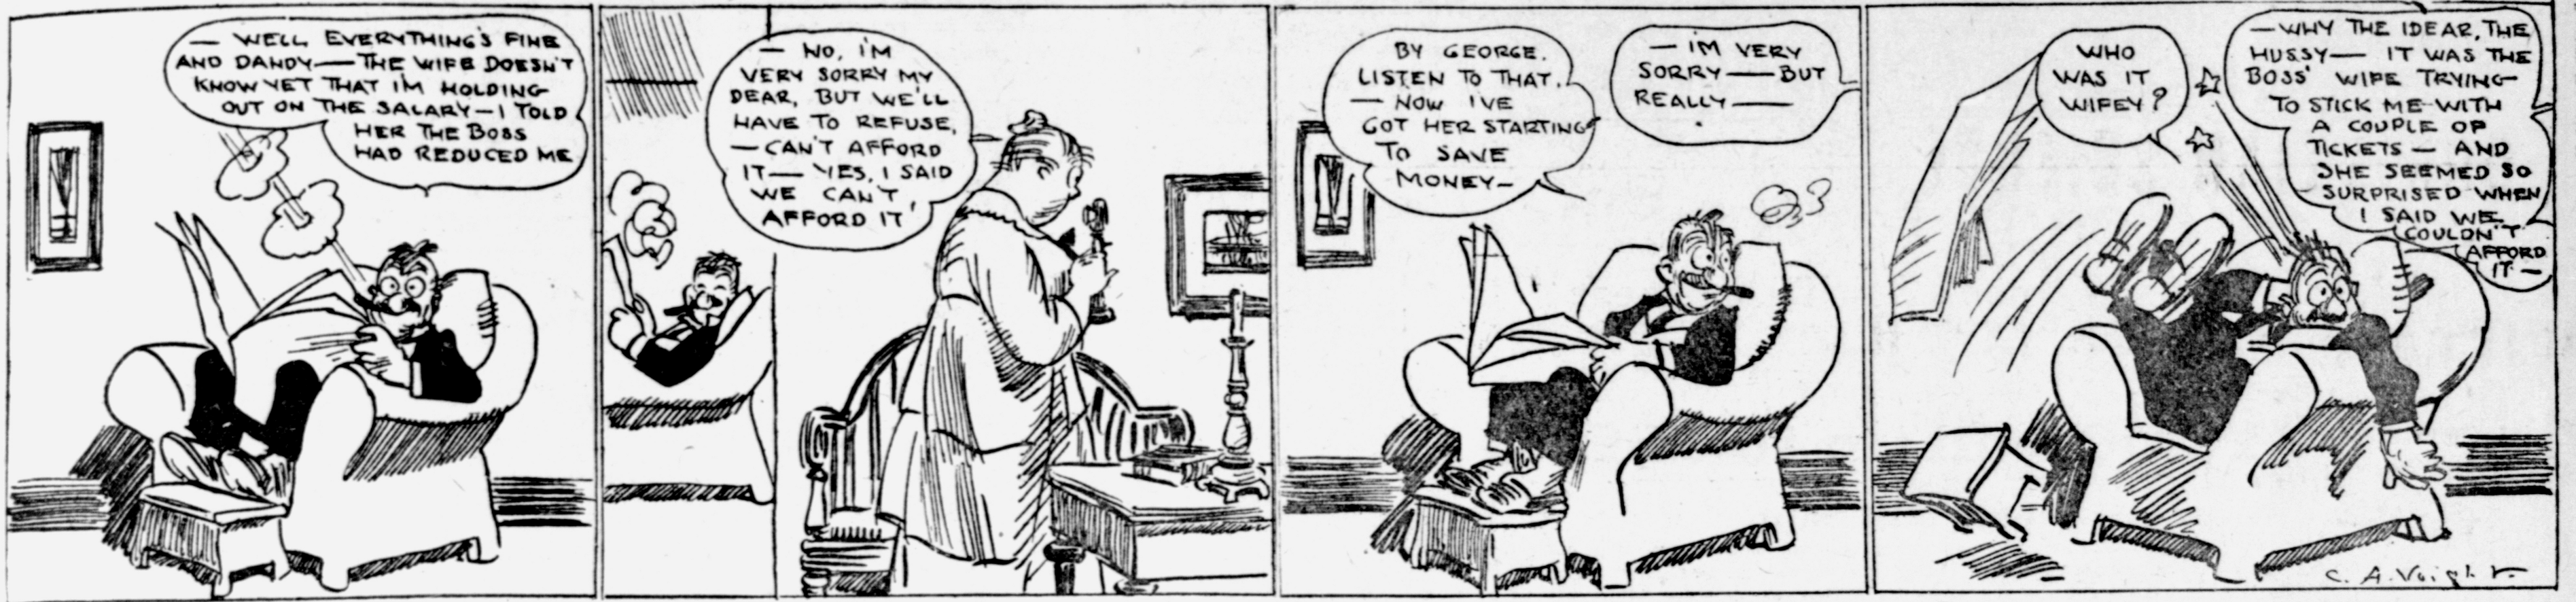

When Paul gained the understanding of God's law as supreme he boldly declared, "The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." The apostle did not fear to claim his God-given rights. The law of God had rendered null and void the so-called law of sin and death and he rejoiced in the liberty wherewith Christ, Truth, had made him free.

Mrs. Eddy writes in Science and Health (p. 231), "To hold yourself superior to sin, because God made you superior to it and governs man, is true wisdom. To fear sin is to misunderstand the power of Love and the divine Science of being in man's relation to God,—to doubt His government and distrust His omnipotent care. To hold yourself superior to sickness and death is equally wise, and is in accordance with divine Science. To fear them is impossible, when you fully apprehend God and know that they are no part of His creation."

"Man governed by his Maker, having no other Mind,—planted on the Evangelist's statement that 'all things were made by Him (the Word of God); and without Him was not anything, made that was made,'—can triumph over sin, sickness, and death."

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Strength in the Liverpool market, and general buying caused higher wheat prices today. Prices at opening were up 1/2c and 3/4c for December and May. Later, advances of 1/2c and 3/4c were recorded.

Heavy buying by the Armour crowd was today's leading feature in a higher corn market. Prices were up 1/2c and 3/4c to 50 and 60 1/2c. The buying continuing, prices later were up 1/2c and 3/4c above opening.

Oats were up with the other cereals.

Provisions opened steady and later showed sudden advances.

SMITH ROLLED BIG SCORES AGAINST STARS OF CHICAGO

Jimmie Smith, world's champion bowler, who will be here tomorrow afternoon and evening at the Malloy alleys for exhibitions, on the night of October 25 proved at the Olsen alleys in Chicago that he was a master of the maples, defeating three of the best bowlers of the Irving Park Bowling league, Thurkow, Bangart and Hicks. The scores, although close at times, displayed the generalship of the champion. In eleven games he collected a total of 2,483 pins for a grand average of 223.8-11.

The scores:
Smith—208, 206, 193, 226; total, 833; average, 208.1-4.
Thurkow—196, 213, 170, 193; total, 772; average, 193.
Smith—259, 265, 223, 205; total, 952; average, 238.
Bangart—171, 211, 230, 191; total, 803; average, 200.8-4.
Smith—218, 256, 224; total, 698; average, 232-3.
Hicks—169, 201, 167; total, 537; average, 179.
Smith and his partner, Alex Dunbar, ex-world's champion, will bowl against the stars of La Crosse at the Malloy alleys tomorrow. John Williams, William Hickisch, George Schaeberger and Ferdinand Roth will roll in the afternoon at 4 o'clock, and Oscar Paulson, Lawrence Bollrud, Fred Affeldt and Arthur Ulrich will appear against the visitors in the evening. Singles and doubles will be on the program for both afternoon and evening.

THE SILO

Wherein is Fodder for Farmers

ST. PAUL, Minn., Nov. 2.—Wisconsin corn growers have been invited to participate in a big corn show to be held here Dec. 1-21. It is expected that eight of the principal farming states of the northwest will be represented by exhibits. Competition will not be between but by states, each state being divided into competing districts. The corn entered for prizes from each district will be judged according to a recognized standard for corn raised in that particular section.

Wisconsin has been divided into two districts for the show, one to include fifteen northern counties, and the second to include fourteen counties in the north central and south central portions of the state.

The rules of the show provide that each exhibit must consist of ten ears of corn, which must be grown by the exhibitor in a field not smaller than one acre.

HARDEST GAMES OF YEAR REMAIN FOR THE NORMAL

Locals Meet Stevens Point Saturday and Then River Falls the Following Week

POINT GAME A QUESTION

Although Beaten by River Falls the Easterners Are Expected to Spring Surprise

The Normal Record
normal, 0.
Oct. 9—L. C. S. N. S., 66; Wisconsin normal, 0.
Oct. 16—L. C. S. N. S., 33; St. Mary's, 6.
Oct. 23—L. C. S. N. S., 35; Superior normal, 0.
Oct. 29—L. C. S. N. S., 0; Dubuque seminary, 27.

The two hardest games on the normal schedule will be played within the next two weeks, when the local state school aggregation meets the normals of Stevens Point and River Falls. A week ago last Friday, River Falls clashed with Stevens Point and was victorious by a 12-0 score, but eye witnesses of the contest claim that the scores were the result of two lucky passes and that the teams battled evenly throughout the game. Next Saturday Strum will take his men to Stevens Point to see what they will do in running the second relay of the conference championship race. Should the local team win this week, the contest for the northern normal school championship will rest on the outcome of the contest in this city one week from Saturday when the Falls men come here. On the other hand, should Stevens Point be victorious over La Crosse, the championship proposition, which so far has been very clear, would begin to assume very perplexing aspects. Superior and Stevens Point are now out of the running with very little chance to come back, so either River Falls or La Crosse will meet the winner of the southern mixups on November 20.

Outside of a hard shaking up at the hands of the Dubuque seminary team last week, La Crosse escaped uninjured. La Frombise will be back this week and Graessle and Miller will be able to recuperate with the other members of the team, but Taylor will not be back for some time. His wrist will not allow him to play this week and may keep him out of the game for the rest of the season. Hard plugging is the order of the day in preparation for the remaining games, which are as follows:
November 6—Stevens Point normal at Stevens Point.
November 13—River Falls normal here.

November 20—Conference championship date.
Thanksgiving day—Minnesota Aggies here.

CHICAGO TOOK THE FIELD A BEATEN BUNCH OF PLAYERS

They Were in Same Boat as Were the Badgers in 1914 when the Cardinal Tied Maroons

(By Irving M. Tuteur.)
MADISON, Wis., Nov. 2.—(Special.)—All Madison is holding a post mortem today. With the return of 2,500 or more Wisconsin supporters from Chicago, every student is trying to figure out just how it happened. And that is about as far as they get.

The situation isn't a great deal different from what it was a year ago, as far as the "dope" goes, although a difference of one lone point between the Maroon and Badger score this year practically eliminates Wisconsin from championship possibilities. Badger aspirations, however, are still high, and of a few of the "ifs" that are now being freely indulged in come to pass, there is still hope for a tie.

A year ago Chicago came to Madison decided favorites in the betting. Wisconsin, it was said, didn't have a chance. But Wisconsin did have a chance. It went onto the field a beaten team, as far as public opinion was concerned, but it tied Chicago. And the "dope" was spilled all over the gridiron.

This year? Reverse the conditions of the foregoing paragraph, and you have the situation exactly—only there is that one menacing point, that one missed goal kick to set Wisconsin back. This year it was Chicago that was the beaten team in the public mind long before the referee's whistle hurled the two elevens against each other. And this year it was Chicago that emerged victorious from the contest.

Everything Upset
Talk about "sure winners," and you can get any Wisconsin man to wince today. He has his doubts.

As an illustration of the surprise Wisconsin students received in the defeat of the Badgers by Chicago by a 14 to 13 score, a football guessing pool conducted by a Madison smoke shop is a striking example. Three hundred and fifty guesses of the score were made, and not one of them proved to be correct. Or in other words, out of 350 Wisconsin men who "had a hunch" as to the size of the score, not one before the game conceded Chicago a 14 to 13 victory.

One thing, however, is certain. The Chicago game must have opened the eyes of the coaches to the team's weaknesses. It should enable them to put a team into the field against Illinois on November 13, fifty percent better in playing strength than the team which battled with the Maroons Saturday.

Weak on Interference
Wisconsin showed up weak in interference Saturday. Dow Byers, speedy halfback, was wholly unable to play his accustomed game because of it. Had he received the same protection that the Maroons gave Pete Russell, things might have been different. The same set of Badgers remained in the game until a few minutes before time was called. In the second half, they appeared almost too exhausted to gain consistently. A change here and in the line might have been advisable. Coach Stag sent a new man into the game every four or five minutes. His team always appeared to be fresh.

Stavrum Plays Whole Game
Eddie Stavrum of La Crosse played left end for Wisconsin throughout the entire game, but his playing was not as strong as it had been in previous contests this year, and he was unable to get away with any forward passes. His playing was consistent.

but Paul Meyers at the other end position was more conspicuous in stopping the Chicago attack. Stevens' shoulder injured early in the season, proved a handicap. "Boots" Weimar and Borge Gunderson of La Crosse were also taken on the trip, but were not used in the game.

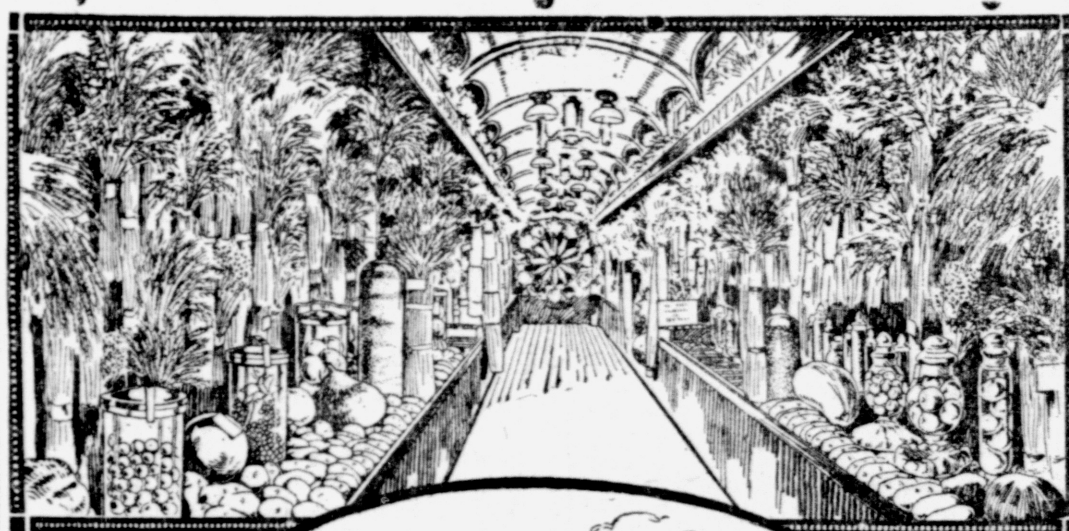

La Crosse students were well represented in the Wisconsin delegation of nearly 3,000 that saw the contest. Among those at the game were Arthur Hayes, Ambrose Murphy, Aloys Brown, Frank Funke, William Cargill, Harry Hirschheimer, Claude Maurer, Fred Reimers, Helen G. Smith and Irving M. Tuteur.
